

2010-02-10

Business Trip into a Winter's tale

by Michael Negele

I could take advantage of the invitation to a workshop with representatives of the new European Chemicals Agency at Helsinki to visit the wonderful antiquarian bookshop of our founder member Kimmo Vålkesalmi. In spite of difficult road conditions – the severe winter had Helsinki under control that afternoon with biting cold temperatures down to  $-10^{\circ}\text{C}$  – my colleague and I could quite well reach the shop on foot from the hotel. Then we had a nice conversation with Kimmo – a long-time barter partner – naturally about chess in Finland and chess books, certainly he had several thousand to view in his shop. At least I could buy three interesting items, among them this strange game collection of the meanwhile inactive GM Heikki Kallio:

— A brochure of 42 pages containing 31 (undated) games. Self published, Vaasa 2008.

A brochure of 42 pages containing 31 (undated) games. Self published, Vaasa 2008.

The author has switched to professional poker in the meantime. Here the link to his web site <http://www.hkallio.net/> and to the Wikipedia page (in German only).

The origin of the beautifully designed chess set for blind persons (photo below) remained unclear. However Kimmo was completely enthusiastic when I advised him of the historical importance of his youngest new acquisition – Amsterdam 1889: Emanuel Lasker's first international tournament.

-

— The bookshop of Kimmo

Välkesalmi, Web: www.shakki.net/kimmoval/...

-

The impressive chess department of the bookshop

Kimmo Välkesalmi in his area

A special chess set for blind persons

Kimmo Välkesalmi and Michael Negele

The additional photographs give a little impression of the deeply snow-covered metropolis in the North.

The Alexander Theatre, directly adjacent to the hotel

Ice hockey – national sport in Finland

Children in the "snowbox" instead of sand – that will harden.

View of the cathedral from the Senate Place – in the centre Czar Alexander II.

The Uspenski Cathedral "towers" over the harbour, the Russian influence is distinctive. It was ice-cold here.